

PRESIDENT WANTS MORE SPEED IN RAIL LEGISLATION

Washington, Feb. 1.—President Wilson today tried to speed up war legislation. He invited eleven Democratic members to the White House and will try his tactics at "speeding up" the railroad control bill. Threats that some Senators object to the bill if it is limited to a war time measure has reached the President's ears. A majority of the members of the Interstate Commerce Committee stand unqualifiedly for such limitation of the control bill. The President acted in view of the delay in the measure he believed necessary to throw the balance against the Kaiser this year. He declared yesterday that this is the crucial period of the war.

LONE AMERICAN PRISONER LOCATED

By J. W. Pegler

With the American Army in France Jan. 31—Delayed—The lone American soldier that the Germans took prisoner in Wednesday's trench raid against the American lines was Private John Gill, according to his comrades. Gill, with his rifle smashed by a shell was last seen savagely fighting with his bare fists against an enclosing circle of Boches. Recently a German reached over the parapet of the enemy's trench and shouted "Hello" in perfectly good American and disappeared before the Sammies could fire. A desultory exchange of artillery fire continued today.

STRIKING GERMANS TO BE SHOT DOWN

Amsterdam, Feb. 1—Germany is ready to "shoot to kill" in order to suppress the general strikers and no distinction will be made between the general strikers and others, it was officially announced in Berlin today. The announcement supplemented a proclamation of the Supreme commander prohibiting public meetings if arms must be used there will be no distinction between the general strikers and others.

Amsterdam, Feb. 1—All public meetings in Germany were banned today by order of the Supreme command in an effort to suppress the general strike according to dispatches from Berlin. The official proclamation reads: "Having introduced more drastic regulations we intend to suppress every attempt to strike. We therefore warn everyone not to participate in a public meeting."

LENINE'S LIFE ATTEMPTED

Before the youth could fire another shot he was overpowered. The guards will be court-martialed. The Polish Legion in Minsk has declared war against the Bolsheviks according to a dispatch from that city today.

These "soldiers of the sea," which is one name by which United States Marines are known are here shown in a practice trench in France wearing their gas masks while they practice with hand grenades. By this time some of these boys may be hurling their grenades at real Germans in opposing trenches.

SMITH & BARGER BUY WALLACE GARAGE

Gerald F. Wallace has disposed of the Wallace Garage, located at corner Fourth and Reed streets to Smith & Barger, who move from their quarters in the old Harder Garage to the new location and take over that business today.

Mr. Wallace does not propose to get out of the automobile game but has associated himself with the Central Garage where he will have charge of the sales department for this growing concern. Mr. Wallace will also retain the agency for the Republic trucks.

The business of Smith & Barger had enlarged to such an extent that larger quarters were a necessity, hence the new deal. They will enlarge their corps of mechanics and repair men and propose conducting a first class and up-to-date garage and repair shop.

PATRIOTIC WEEK VERY SUCCESSFUL IN THIS COUNTY

The series of patriotic meetings planned for the schools in Mahaffey District were held Wednesday and reports from that section indicate that with very few exceptions the speaker reached their appointments and the meetings invariably were enthusiastic and well attended. Members of the Speakers' Bureau uniformly report that the good old-fashioned, unadulterated spirit of patriotism was very much in evidence at the meetings at which they spoke. Excellent programs, patriotic in nature, were rendered at practically all the schools. People attended the patriotic meeting held in the Assembly Room in the new school building. C. A. Weisgerber of Clearfield addressed the audience and the Mahaffey Orchestra assisted the pupils in carrying out their very successful program.

The meeting at Westover was held in the forenoon with more than 125 persons present. Meetings at Coalport and Blaine City were held during the afternoon and a total of over 400 were present at these two meetings. A patriotic program of outstanding excellence was rendered by the Coalport Schools. In the evening W. I. Swoope of Clearfield addressed an audience of over 300 in the Presbyterian church at Irvona. The program prepared by the Irvona schools and given during the afternoon was repeated for this occasion.

BASKETBALL GAME TONIGHT

It was the intention of the management to have the Basketball scheduled for tonight played tomorrow night on account of the patriotic program. The arrangements fell down and the Altoona team arrived in town today. Accordingly the game will have to be played this evening and it is now the intention to have the game immediately after Prof. Gast's address.

The game will start promptly at 8 o'clock and the fans should all be present.

WAR MUST BE WON WITHOUT AID FROM PLEASANT HILL

Well, we "did our bit" at least we made the effort and have W. I. Betts and John P. McCurdy as living witnesses of the extent of that effort.

When the Hon. Joseph E. Phillips speakers' bureau of the Committee of Public Safety started in to inflict drafted speakers on the different schools and communities throughout the county for patriotic week in a moment of great inspiration the manager thereof selected the writer as the proper person to journey into the wilds of Decatur township and point out the lessons of the war and the patriotic duty of the good people of that community in support of their government at war.

We tried to escape the assignment by various pleas and ruses but the Hon. Joseph was a stern and unbending commanding officer and charged us with the responsibility of being at Pleasant Hill on the date mentioned. We put it, each school had prepared a program and would be very much disappointed if the speaker failed to show up. Some school ma'ams are pretty nice at that, and we finally decided to keep our date.

So yesterday morning Messrs. Betts, scheduled for Chester Hill, McCurdy due at Jefferson school and yours truly "hit the rattlers on the N. Y. C. at 9:53 and in due time arrived in Philipsburg. After a good dinner at the Sheffer House we severally started for the scenes of our forensic efforts. Traveling in the same direction McCurdy and the hero of this tale bundled into one of Hurley's sleighs and were soon skimming blithely over the snow with patriotism bubbling o'er and oozing from every pore.

When we go away from home we are continually being mistaken for one or the other of three solid citizens of our town, but that never interferes with our digestion or the joy we get out of living.

When our sleigh arrived at the point where the Pleasant Hill road radiates from the main road between Philipsburg and Blue Ball we hopped out of same after bidding McCurdy "good bye and good luck." We were hardly prepared for the sight which met our gaze. There in the snow bordered road stood the Pleasant Hill teacher and her flock, gaily decked out in the National colors, awaiting our arrival, while a committee of the sturdy villagers bearing Old Glory proudly floating in the breeze, with a life and drum corps, headed the procession and the start to the school house was made.

The warmth of our reception acted as a match to our train of patriotic

MEETING AT COURT HOUSE TUESDAY EVE

Reports from the mountains in every section of this county is to the effect that the game is starving and unless some action is taken by the local sportsmen the deer, rabbits and pheasants will all perish, the deep snow making it impossible for the denizens of the wild to get food.

In order to take some action looking to supplying food a meeting of the sportsmen of Clearfield and vicinity has been called for Tuesday evening next in the Arbitration room.

All persons interested in the preservation of the wild life of our hills are requested to attend this meeting.

Arrangements have already been made through the State Game Commission to feed the deer in Kennedy park reserve, but this is only a drop in the bucket, as word comes from the Curwensville and Shawville country that the deer are already forced to gnaw the bark from the birch trees in the vicinity of their yards in each of these sections, while conditions are no doubt similar in the more remote sections.

Something must be done and done quickly. Reports from the different sections will be read at this meeting and all sportsmen are earnestly urged to be present Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock.

TROTSKY REJECTS ALLIED WAR AIMS

By Jos. Shaplen

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Copyright by the United Press 1918

Petrograd, Jan. 28—Delayed—Foreign Minister Trotsky today replied to the war aims declarations of President Wilson and Premier Lloyd George through the United Press.

"President Wilson's declaration will apply in some cases and will apply to Austro-Hungary and similarly to German diplomacy. It was the same with the German plans but when they were applied they were not practical. It turned out to be an avowed, imperialistic views under cover of democratic peace terms. Primarily President Wilson's address is intended for Austro-Hungary. He is willing to suggest autonomy but does not say anything about complete independence of nations. Lloyd George in one of his recent speeches practically expressed threats against Russia. Therefore we regard the German terms given us at Brest-Litovsk as coming directly from Germany as silently approved by the Entente.

A CORRECTION

One of those unfortunate occurrences which seem bound to happen once in a great while and for which the staff of The Progress is extremely sorry happened yesterday in the account concerning Glen Schenck who was injured at the Penn Public Coal Mine above Clearfield. We are indeed happy to know that Mr. Schenck is getting along nicely and that the report we heard and printed was without foundation. We desire to extend to Mr. Schenck and his family and friends our most sincere regrets as we fully appreciate the shock it was to them.

KAISER HOLDS AMERICANS IN WAR TORN BELGIUM

Washington, Feb. 1.—The five remaining Americans held in Belgium have been denied the right to enter Holland today, the Spanish minister at Brussels has informed our minister at Holland, the State Department declared today. The government does not understand why Germany is imposing this restriction unless it is in retaliation for the fact that Germany is not permitted to leave the United States. The American government does not know who the five Americans are.

UNDER THE CAMOUFLAGE Intimate War Experiences and Observations of LOWELL MELLETT

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Paris, Nov. 30.—Rue de Grenelle was dark and deserted at 6.30. So, too, seemed the big building of the Russian Embassy. The doorman led me to M. Maklakoff's room through halls that echoed our foot-steps. In a great, sombre room, lighted only by a desk lamp in one corner, stood the lonesome figure of Kerensky's envoy.

He is a big, vital sort of person, but he looked as lonesome as big Russia looks now on the world's map. Despite a thick beard he looked youthful. The beard itself, jet black and short, was ragged; it had the appearance of being tolerated as something unavoidable, but not encouraged.

The interview proceeded, after a brief try-out in French and another in French-English, in straight Russian-English. M. Maklakoff was not happy in English and its extended use proved something of an ordeal for him, but he stuck heroically to the task. He confined himself to simple statements—not in words of one syllable, of course, for in a foreign tongue it isn't the short words that usually are easiest but the long ones—and made pretty fair progress in elucidating the subject, "How Can America Best Help Russia?"

The use of both arms aided him a good deal and the ambassador also appeared to benefit by sitting first on one foot and then on the other. But he wasn't satisfied that he had made himself clear, though he had done so perfectly. As I was leaving there entered a blond-mustached gentleman. The ambassador seized him with joy, waved me back to my chair, and shot a stream of Russian at the newcomer. The latter then, in correct Oxford English, repeated it to me. It was exactly what the ambassador had developed in his own struggle with the English language. When I told him so he was greatly pleased.

Vance McCormick admitted today that being an international conferee is in some ways harder than running a newspaper or electing a president. His particular job, much like that of a minister of blockade, is undoubtedly one of the hardest the President had to bestow since it involves the disposal of America's proudest product not only to the best advantage of America and the Allies, but the least damage to the friendship of the neutrals.

Dined at the Cafe de la Paix. Just finishing about 9.15 when in stamed a squadron of the U. S. Navy, with a flagship in the shape of a large, serious gentleman with a South Carolina accent. I heard the accent across the room as the flagship endeavored to arrange to take on supplies for himself and party. The Southern drawl is a beautiful thing, but it isn't French. The result was a deadlock. The officer's eyes roved around the room till they caught mine and he called out across the heads of all intervening diners:

"Do you speak English?"
"American," I responded.
The squadron bore down on me.
"My name's Mosher," said the flagship. "We're just off a train after riding all day and we're hungry enough to eat a grizzly bear, hide and all. I've tried to tell these people but they don't understand. Maybe you can help."

I could, for I'd heard the head waiter talking excellent English only a few minutes before.

Paris, Nov. 29.—Well, I've just about seen them all. They were there this morning and if I didn't see all of them it was because they came so fast one pair of eyes couldn't take them in. Or because occasionally one particular face—like Caster—was bound to escape my attention to the exclusion of the rest. With a little imagination it is possible to see in Caster's whole story of the war. He glistened in outline and made the lines made by trouble—trouble—hard thinking and terrible responsibility. It is yet a confident countenance. His eyes in the shadow of his cap's visor clear and sure. And there is in his chunky shoulders. He was the center of one group. Italians that stood for a moment in the ante room off the room of Ministers des Affaires Etrangères fore passing into the later-illuminated room. The new prince, lands and Baron Sonnino, led a group through the crowd of well-dressed spectators into the ante room. The ante room filled soon was almost a colorful scene, the of the generals—few less than a hundred—were present—being an occasional back-ground of white, such as Dr. Alexander Cambridge Colby, Mr. Bertie, Lord Bertie, for example, and Lord Curzon, and others. The needed needed khaki having something of it, enough in fact to lead to their sallow brown faces. Saw them all, General Li, of China, and Popovich, a negro, Generals Petain and France, Lord Milner, Gen. Wilson and the rest of the Prince Charoon of Siam, Venizelos of Greece and Savaris from Russia. In all there were to a hundred. Didn't see Clemenceau, he apparently entering the council directly from his private office, sorry; wanted to see the Allies set his face against a League of Nations. The conferees stood about the room in separate groups. Occasionally the eyes of one group strayed toward another, but the smile hadn't begun to work. Came then Col. House of America, U. S. A. Almost instantly was changed. Lord Northcliffe saw his face the crowd closed about rapidly, low Northcliffe's handshaking simple. Soon nothing but the upper curve of the Colonel's head could be seen. One consequence of this conversation on the Colonel was that George and Earl Reading, whom prominent later were almost all backs being turned toward door. The conferees moved into the ante chamber and the doors closed, with me on the outside. Every now and then a reporter terribly tempted. This was or those times. I could have walked and participated, silently, I of it, and one of the Americans confirmed the opinion I didn't go in. Aside from the thing, there was always possibility of being kicked down the banks of the Seine to the away banks of the Wabash. The session lasted long, an hour, barely time to telephone the fee and pay a flying visit to the of Napoleon in des Invalides the way. It being one of the days in the week when visitors admitted there was an hour's throng, dividing their homage between the plain casket of the or and the flower-bedded of C. Clemenceau, on exhibition of of them it was because they came so fast one pair of eyes couldn't take them in. Or because occasionally one

TAXING TRANSPORTATION CAPACITY

No one will fail to appreciate the motives which prompt men to make long trips to visit their sons, brothers, husbands or sweethearts who are in training at the various military camps throughout the United States. Nor will anyone be in understanding of the desire of the soldiers to get a further opportunity to visit their homes. The feeling of affection and personal interest which prompts visits of this kind is only a virtue in the individual but is a necessary bond in advancing social organization. We are in this war to fight for the defense of those we love. We feel deep concern for the welfare of the loved ones who are enduring the privations, the hardships and the dangers of the war. But it must not be forgotten that every person who travels unnecessarily these days is taking much of the transportation capacity of the railroads and increasing in corresponding degree in the shipment of commodities for the use of our soldiers and the armies of our allies.

GARFIELD ORDER ENDS CONGRESSIONAL COMA

After undergoing a five months' period of fermentation, Harry Garfield, late of Williams College, U. S. fuel auditor, blew off the dome of the National Capitol and stood mounting statue of freedom on her head with his imperial crown to all industries east of the Mississippi to rake fires and wheels. The history of our country no such dilatory use of power before exhibited, nor will it be again if Congress persists in its determination henceforth to have some voice in the affairs of the United States. The Garfield order, sanctioned by the President, brought to the entire country a realization of what disaster can be wreaked upon it by theorists drunk with power. Congress, which has been for delay and demoralization growing out of a policy, which has tamely submitted to torrents of misinformed public press, which has time and again gated all too freely of its powers to central authority, beginning to find itself—to appreciate its own importance against an autocracy whose roots have penetrated the Germany and have been spreading over the United States. One of the first evidences of Congressional reassertion of authority as a coordinate branch of Government, in the Senate, at least, will probably be the early passage over the President's resistance, of the bill providing for a Department of Munitions, which will take over the work of the tangled officialdom in Washington, straighten out the kinks and put it on a smoother running under a Secretary who will be the reference point for reality. The Garfield order was calamitous; it was unjustifiable; it alienated many of the President's friends; it has retarded activities; it has discouraged business, so generous in helping the cause; it will have a disastrous effect on crops depending on this year's output of harvesting machinery; it has thrown all the country out of gear; the laborers who have suffered from it have been able to buy coal, and the coal distribution promised has been achieved. But the order has brought Congress to its senses, and that is something.

Soldiers in the military hospital at Bath, England, furnish an example of war's coincidence. Two boys born in the same village, joined the same regiment, were both wounded in their left legs by bullets which passed into the right foot, travelled home to the same conveyance, and were both by side in the hospital to receive identical treatment. Jess Willard figures he can trim Brennan, Fulton, Moran and Dempsey the same night. But Jess won't do it. Taking them one at a time on different dates would mean four times as much money for the champion.

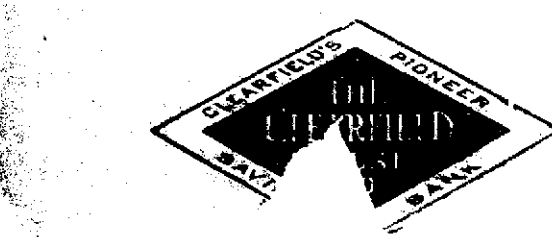

The average number of letters censored each day in the London Postal Censorship department is 375,517, weighing about four tons.

ALTOONA HIGH WILL PUT UP STIFF SCRAP

Lovers of basketball are looking forward to the coming game on Saturday evening between the local high school and Altoona High school. It will be remembered that last year Altoona was the only high school of its class to defeat the crack Reading high school team. This was done by the narrow margin of two points. This same Reading bunch defeated the local tilters by two points so it there is anything in the dope or comparative scores there should be some great basketball in the high school gymnasium on Saturday night. This game was scheduled for Friday night but owing to the fact that Altoona was compelled to switch nights with Houtzdale the usual Friday night game for Clearfield will this week be played on Saturday night. Coach Smith is getting the boys rounded up into shape. They have been hard at work since their defeat at the hands of Reynoldsville last week and will be in line for this coming game with Altoona.

Official figures just made public show that the average cost of food stuffs in England has a little more than doubled since the commencement of the war.

Not a Corn or Callus on Feet

Apply few drops, then lift them off without pain.
A noted Cincinnati authority discovered a new ether compound and called it freezezone and now can be had in little bottles for a few cents from any drug store.
You simply apply a few drops of freezezone upon a tender corn or painful callus and in a few minutes the soreness disappears, then shortly you will find the corn or callus so loose that you can lift it off with the fingers.
No pain, not a bit of soreness, either when applying freezezone or afterwards, and it doesn't even irritate the skin.
Hard corns, soft corns or corns between the toes, also toughened calluses, just shrivel up and lift off so easy. It is wonderful! It works like a charm. Try it! Women should keep freezezone on their dressers and never let a corn ache twice.

AIRPLANE TYPES BECOME MORE VARIED

Advance In Science Of Traveling Through Air Keeps Experts On Alert For Improvements

LIFE OF A MACHINE IS SHORT

Washington, D. C., Jan. 30.—The statement that Uncle Sam is building hundreds of aeroplanes "of the most improved patterns, to aid in the war against the Germans, means little to the average person. To most people an aeroplane is an aeroplane. Very few of those outside of the military service realize that the types of flying machines evolved during the three years and more of the war vary as materially as do the types of ships comprising the United States navy. There is hardly more difference in fact, between a battleship and a destroyer than there is between one of the new battleplanes and a single seater scout. These latter are, in fact, the "destroyers" of the air. Then can easily attain a speed of 150 miles an hour, climb more than one thousand feet a minute up to twenty thousand feet and over, and can turn and dip and perform such "stunts" as looping-the-loop as quickly and easily as dragon-flies. Their business is to spy out the land behind the enemy's lines. Unlike the battleplanes, fighting is not their main business. At the other end of the scale are the corps buses, as they are termed in the war zones, whose duty it is to keep up constant communication between the firing line and their attached battalions in the rear. Almost any machine can be made to do duty as a corps bus. It is the last stage downward before the training bus period is reached; after which the machine goes to the scrap heap. The bombing machines are the "cavalry" of the air. Their pilots are a law unto themselves, darting hither and thither at their own free will and dropping their "eggs" on aerodromes, ammunition depots, railway stations, or any other chance target that happens to attract their attention. With the bombing machines usually go two or more double-seater fighting scouts. These serve a two-fold purpose. They protect the bombers against attacks by hostile aeroplanes, and in between whiffs, if no enemy machine is in sight, they will swoop down, and from a height of a few hundred feet start machine-gunning any likely target—a detachment of troops on the march, a transport column, or a stray motor car. The fighting-scout pilots term these little diversions "ground stunts."

Then there are the patrol buses, entirely different from the corps buses already mentioned. The patrol bus is a low flying, slow-moving machine, whose main duty consists in mothering the infantry during an advance. That is to say, they follow their doings, signal back for reinforcements when necessary, inform the gunners when to carry forward their barrage fire and report progress generally to brigade headquarters in the rear. Then again, there are the machines fitted with cameras, whose business it is to photograph the enemy defenses. These are the eyes of the army. Very little escapes them. They fly often twenty, thirty or more miles beyond the enemy's first line, watching, prying, recording everything that is worth while. The camera-carrying machine is a two-seater, very fast, and, as its work takes it always well inside the danger zone it carries also with it one or more machine guns, together with as many drums of ammunition as can conveniently be stowed on board.

Of an altogether different type are the aeroplanes whose special duty it is to guide and control the fire of the heavy guns. These are exceedingly stable machines, carrying powerful wireless installations, with which they are able to signal immediately every hit or miss, as the case may be, to the gunners manipulating the enormous pieces of ordnance ten, twelve or more miles distant, and when, in most instances, are quite unable to see the target at which they are aiming.

The cost of these different types of machines varies considerably, but all are expensive to make, and tend to become more so month by month. Moreover, the life of an aeroplane is an exceedingly short one. A machine brand-new from the factory, embodying all the latest improvements, is good for perhaps four or five months of active service, just holds its own for perhaps two or three more, and then becomes obsolete, except as a training bus.

IF KIDNEYS ACT BAD TAKE SALTS

Says Backache is Sign you Have been
Eating too much meat

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and laggard. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them like you relieve your bowels; removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sour, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scale and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink.

We waited right up to the door and rapped but got no answer. Then we tried the door. It was locked. We were charged by the Hon. Joseph to get there and deliver that speech and we were determined to obey orders. Thinking the teacher and school knew who the speaker was to be and had the door locked on us we decided to get into that school if we had to break in.

the air, we were unable to get a look inside until after we had doffed our overcoat and laboriously shinned up a convenient tree to a point of vantage where we could see the entire school room. Nobody there.

When we sadly turned away, a woman living in the house across the road from the school came to the door and we asked her if that was Pleasant Hill school house. She said it was and volunteered the further information that the stove broke down and there hadn't been any school there for more than a week. We think the Hon. Joseph and the speakers bureau knew this when they made their assignments, too.

But that's the way it goes in "this here cruel, cruel world." No sooner do you get your candle from under the bushie until some darn thing comes along with snufflers and snuffs out your light. Gone are our dreams of a platform career; we had visions at times of sharing the lime light with Grape Juice Bill Bryan or Teetheadore Mouthevilt, but never again; no never again.

We've got to win this war without Pleasant Hill, that's all there is to it, and furthermore we have a sneaking suspicion that that stove didn't break down until after the list of speakers was published, and furthermore we are not sure the darn thing was broken down at that. But there was nobody there to greet us anyhow. Sadly we wended our way back down to the main road. We were all dressed up and nowhere to go. Glancing about we noticed the word "Retreat" on a fence paralleling the road, and that gave us the proper idea. Retreat we did, and soon covered the mile of snowy road back to Phillipsburg.

GRANTED RIGHTS FOR 99 YEARS

Horn Family Now Wealthy By Lease of Acid Iron Mineral Rights To Corporation

Most everyone has read of the great medicinal iron deposit unearthed on the horn farm down near Hickory, Mississippi and today the highly concentrated product is put up under the A-I-M trade mark of the Ferrodine Chemical Corp., which has stood for quality and strength in medicines for over thirty years.

Dr. R. C. Johnson, of Stringer, Mississippi, in a letter some time ago said: "I have used Acid Iron Mineral in my practice for a number of years and find that it has no equal as a nerve, blood purifier and liver medicine. In the treatment of indigestion and dyspepsia nothing can compete with it."

Just a teaspoonful or less of Acid Iron Mineral mixed with a glass of water after meals has relieved many a man and woman of severe stomach troubles and pains, indigestion and the various other symptoms of stomach disorders and after treatment not only has their appetite been revived

but uric acid seemed to disappear by magic, leaving people troubled with rheumatism, again and free of pain. "Dr. A. L. Johnson of this prescribed Acid Iron Mineral writes E. C. Keen, D. D. S., of Va., "and for the past two years had excruciating pains from rheumatism in my left arm. I raised my arm, it was so bad, taking about three quarters of the he prescribed for me I was cured and haven't been bothered. In my opinion it is a wonderful purifier and remedy for rheumatism." E. C. Keen, D. D. S.

Note—Neither Doctor Johnson nor I are of any kin. The files of people of same name who are large bottle will be sent upon receipt of $1 by the Ferrodine Chemical Corporation, Roanoke. For sale by Stewart Drug in good stores generally.

PRESIDENT WANTS MORE SPEED IN RAIL LEGISLATION

Washington, Feb. 1.—President Wilson today tried to speed up war legislation. He invited eleven Democratic members to the White House and will try his tactics at "speeding up" the railroad control bill. Threats that some Senators object to the bill if it is limited to a war time measure has reached the President's ears. A majority of the members of the Interstate Commerce Committee stand unqualifiedly for such limitation of the control bill. The President acted in view of the delay in the measure he believed necessary to throw the balance against the Kaiser this year. He declared yesterday that this is the crucial period of the war.

LONE AMERICAN PRISONER LOCATED

By J. W. Pegler

With the American Army in France, Jan. 31—Delayed—The lone American soldier that the Germans took prisoner in Wednesday's trench raid against the American lines was Private John Gill, according to his comrades. Gill, with his rifle smashed by a shell was last seen savagely fighting with his bare fists against an enclosing circle of Boches. Recently a German reached over the parapet of the enemy's trench and shouted "Hello" in perfectly good American and disappeared before the Sammies could fire. A desultory exchange of artillery fire continued today.

Amsterdam, Feb. 1—All public meetings in Germany were banned today by order of the Supreme command in an effort to suppress the general strike according to dispatches from Berlin. The official proclamation reads: "Having introduced more drastic regulations we intend to suppress every attempt to strike. We therefore warn everyone not to participate in a public meeting."

PATRIOTIC WEEK VERY SUCCESSFUL IN THIS COUNTY

The series of patriotic meetings planned for the schools in Mahaffey District were held Wednesday and reports from that section indicate that with very few exceptions the speaker reached their appointments and the meetings invariably were enthusiastic and well attended. Members of the Speakers' Bureau uniformly report that the good old-fashioned, unadulterated spirit of patriotism was very much in evidence at the meetings at which they spoke. Excellent programs, patriotic in nature, were rendered at practically all the schools. People attended the patriotic meeting held in the Assembly Room in the new school building. C. A. Weisgerber of Clearfield addressed the audience and the Mahaffey Orchestra assisted the pupils in carrying out their very successful program.

The meeting at Westover was held in the forenoon with more than 125 persons present. Meetings at Coalport and Blaine City were held during the afternoon and a total of over 400 were present at these two meetings. A patriotic program of outstanding excellence was rendered by the Coalport Schools. In the evening W. I. Swoope of Clearfield addressed an audience of over 300 in the Presbyterian church at Irvonia. The program prepared by the Irvonia schools and given during the afternoon was repeated for this occasion.

BASKETBALL GAME TONIGHT

It was the intention of the management to have the Basketball scheduled for tonight played tomorrow night on account of the patriotic program. The arrangements fell down and the Altoona team arrived in town today. Accordingly the game will have to be played this evening and it is now the intention to have the game immediately after Prof. Gast's address.

The game will start promptly at 8 o'clock and the fans should all be present.

WAR MUST BE WON WITHOUT AID FROM PLEASANT HILL

Well, we "did our bit" at least we made the effort and have W. I. Betts and John P. McCurdy as living witnesses of the extent of that effort.

When the Hon. Joseph E. Phillips speakers' bureau of the Committee of Public Safety started in to inflict drafted speakers on the different schools and communities throughout the county for patriotic week in a moment of great inspiration the manager thereof selected the writer as the proper person to journey into the wilds of Decatur township and point out the lessons of the war and the patriotic duty of the good people of that community in support of their government at war.

We tried to escape the assignment by various pleas and ruses but the Hon. Joseph was a stern and unbending commanding officer and charged us with the responsibility of being at Pleasant Hill on the date mentioned. He provided a substitute, because as Joe put it, each school had prepared a program and would be very much disappointed if the speaker failed to show up. Some school ma'ams are pretty nice at that, and we finally decided to keep our date.

So yesterday morning Messrs. Betts, scheduled for Chester Hill, McCurdy due at Jefferson school and yours truly "hit the rattlers on the N. Y. C. at 9:53 and in due time arrived in Philipsburg. After a good dinner at the Sheffer House we severally started for the scenes of our forensic efforts. Traveling in the same direction McCurdy and the hero of this tale bundled into one of Hurley's sleighs and were soon skimming blithely over the snow with patriotism bubbling o'er and oozing from every pore.

When we go away from home we are continually being mistaken for one or the other of three solid citizens of our town, but that never interferes with our digestion or the joy we get out of living.

When our sleigh arrived at the point where the Pleasant Hill road radiates from the main road between Philipsburg and Blue Ball we hopped out of same after bidding McCurdy "good bye and good luck." We were hardly prepared for the sight which met our gaze. There in the snow bordered road stood the Pleasant Hill teacher and her flock, gaily decked out in the National colors, awaiting our arrival, while a committee of the sturdy villagers bearing Old Glory proudly floating in the breeze, with a life and drum corps, headed the procession and the start to the school house was made.

MEETING AT COURT HOUSE TUESDAY EVE

Reports from the mountains in every section of this county is to the effect that the game is starving and unless some action is taken by the local sportsmen the deer, rabbits and pheasants will all perish, the deep snow making it impossible for the denizens of the wild to get food.

In order to take some action looking to supplying food a meeting of the sportsmen of Clearfield and vicinity has been called for Tuesday evening next in the Arbitration room.

All persons interested in the preservation of the wild life of our hills are requested to attend this meeting.

Arrangements have already been made through the State Game Commission to feed the deer in Kennedy park reserve, but this is only a drop in the bucket, as word comes from the Curwensville and Shawville country that the deer are already forced to gnaw the bark from the birch trees in the vicinity of their yards in each of these sections, while conditions are no doubt similar in the more remote sections.

Something must be done and done quickly. Reports from the different sections will be read at this meeting and all sportsmen are earnestly urged to be present Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock.

TROTSKY REJECTS ALLIED WAR AIMS

By Jos. Shaplen

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Copyright by the United Press 1918

Petrograd, Jan. 28—Delayed—Foreign Minister Trotsky today replied to the war aims declarations of President Wilson and Premier Lloyd George through the United Press.

"President Wilson's declaration will apply in some cases and will apply to Austro-Hungary and similarly to German diplomacy. It was the same with the German plans but when they were applied they were not practical. It turned out to be an annihilation, imperialistic views under cover of democratic peace terms. Primarily President Wilson's address is intended for Austro-Hungary. He is willing to suggest autonomy but does not say anything about complete independence of nations. Lloyd George in one of his recent speeches practically expressed threats against Russia. Therefore we regard the German terms given us at Brest-Litovsk as coming directly from Germany as silently approved by the Entente.

A CORRECTION

One of those unfortunate occurrences which seem bound to happen once in a great while and for which the staff of The Progress is extremely sorry happened yesterday in the account concerning Glen Schenck who was injured at the Penn Public Coal Mine above Clearfield. We are indeed happy to know that Mr. Schenck is getting along nicely and that the report we heard and printed was without foundation. We desire to extend to Mr. Schenck and his family and friends our most sincere regrets as we fully appreciate the shock it was to them.

KAISER HOLDS AMERICANS IN WAR TORN BELGIUM

Washington, Feb. 1.—The five remaining Americans held in Belgium have been denied the right to enter Holland today, the Spanish minister at Brussels has informed our minister at Holland, the State Department declared today. The government does not understand why Germany is imposing this restriction unless it is in retaliation for the fact that Germany is not permitted to leave the United States. The American government does not know who the five Americans are.

UNDER THE CAMOUFLAGE Intimate War Experiences and Observations of LOWELL MELLETT

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Paris, Nov. 30.—Rue de Grenelle was dark and deserted at 6.30. So, too, seemed the big building of the Russian Embassy. The doorman led me to M. Maklakoff's room through halls that echoed our foot-steps. In a great, sombre room, lighted only by a desk lamp in one corner, stood the lonesome figure of Kerensky's envoy.

He is a big, vital sort of person, but he looked as lonesome as big Russia looks now on the world's map. Despite a thick beard he looked youthful. The beard itself, jet black and short, was ragged; it had the appearance of being tolerated as something unavoidable, but not encouraged.

The interview proceeded, after a brief try-out in French and another in French-English, in straight Russian-English. M. Maklakoff was not happy in English and its extended use proved something of an ordeal for him, but he stuck heroically to the task. He confined himself to simple statements—not in words of one syllable, of course, for in a foreign tongue it isn't the short words that usually are easiest but the long ones—and made pretty fair progress in elucidating the subject, "How Can America Best Help Russia?"

The use of both arms aided him a good deal and the ambassador also appeared to benefit by sitting first on one foot and then on the other. But he wasn't satisfied that he had made himself clear, though he had done so perfectly.

As I was leaving there entered a blond-mustached gentleman. The ambassador seized him with joy, waved me back to my chair, and shot a stream of Russian at the newcomer. The latter then, in correct Oxford English, repeated it to me. It was exactly what the ambassador had developed in his own struggle with the English language. When I told him so he was greatly pleased.

Vance McCormick admitted today that being an international conferee is in some ways harder than running a newspaper or electing a president. His particular job, much like that of a minister of blockade, is undoubtedly one of the hardest the President had to bestow since it involves the disposal of America's proudest product not only to the best advantage of America and the Allies, but the least damage to the friendship of the neutrals.

Dined at the Cafe de la Paix. Just finishing about 9.15 when in stamed a squadron of the U. S. Navy, with a flagship in the shape of a large, serious gentleman with a South Carolina accent. I heard the accent across the room as the flagship endeavored to arrange to take on supplies for himself and party. The Southern drawl is a beautiful thing, but it isn't French. The result was a deadlock. The officer's eyes roved around the room till they caught mine and he called out across the heads of all intervening diners:

"Do you speak English?"
"American," I responded.
The squadron bore down on me.
"My name's Mosher," said the flagship. "We're just off a train after riding all day and we're hungry enough to eat a grizzly bear, hide and all. I've tried to tell these people but they don't understand. Maybe you can help."

I could, for I'd heard the head waiter talking excellent English only a few minutes before.

Paris, Nov. 29.—Well, I've just about seen them all. They were there this morning and if I didn't see all of them it was because they came so fast one pair of eyes couldn't take them in. Or because occasionally one particular face—like Caudan's—was bound to escape attention to the exclusion of the rest. With a little imagination it is possible to see in Caudan's whole story of the war. He glistened in outline and motion the lines made by trouble—trouble—hard thinking and responsible responsibility. It is yet a confident countenance. His eyes in the shadow of his cap's visor clear and sure. And there is in his chunky shoulders.

He was the center of one group. Italians that stood for a moment the ante room off the room of Ministers des Affaires Etrangères fore passing into the later-illuminated room. The new prince, lands and Baron Sonnino, led the group through the crowd of well-dressed spectators into the hall.

The ante room filled soon was almost a colorful scene, the of the generals—few less than a hundred—were present—being an occasional back-ground of white, such as Dr. Alexander Cambridge Colby, Mr. Bertie, Lord Bertie, for example, the res. Col. Tavares and others, finished the needed routine khaki having something of it, enough in fact to lead them to their shallow brown faces.

Saw them all, General Li, of China, and Popovich of negro, Generals Petain and France, Lord Milner, Gen. Wilson and the rest of the Prince Charoon of Siam, Venizelos of Greece and Savanov from Russia. In all there were to a hundred.

Didn't see Clemenceau, he apparently entering the council directly from his private office, sorry; wanted to see the Allies set his face against a League of Nations.

The conferees stood about the room in separate groups. Occasionally the eyes of one group strayed toward another, but the smile hadn't begun to work.

Came then Col. House of America, U. S. A. Almost instantly was changed.

Lord Northcliffe saw his side the crowd closed about rapidly, low Northcliffe's handshaking simple. Soon nothing but the upper curve of the Colonel's massive head could be seen.

One consequence of this session on the Colonel was that George and Earl Reading, whom prominent later were almost universal all backs being turned toward door.

The conferees moved into the council chamber and the doors closed, with me on the outside.

Every now and then a reporter terribly tempted. This was or those times. I could have walked and participated, silently, epoch-making conference. I of it, and one of the Americans confirmed the opinion I didn't go in. Aside from the thing, there was always possibility of being kicked down the banks of the Seine to the away banks of the Wabash.

The session lasted long, three hour, barely time to telephone the fee and pay a flying visit to the of Napoleon in des Invalides along the way. It being one of the first days in the week when visitors admitted there was an hour's throng, dividing their homage between the plain casket of the Emperor and the flower-bedazzled statue of Clemenceau, on exhibition to the fast one pair of eyes couldn't take them in. Or because occasionally one

No one will fail to appreciate the motives which prompt men to make long trips to visit their sons, brothers, husbands or sweethearts who are in training at the various military camps throughout the United States. Nor will anyone be in understanding of the desire of the soldiers to get a further opportunity to visit their homes. The feeling of affection and personal interest which prompts visits of this kind is only a virtue in the individual but is a necessary bond in advancing social organization. We are in this war to fight for the defense of those we love. We feel deep concern for the welfare of the loved ones who are enduring the privations, the hardships and the dangers of the war. But it must not be forgotten that every person who travels unnecessarily these days is taking much of the transportation capacity of the railroads and shipping in corresponding degree in the shipment of commodities for the use of our soldiers and the armies of our allies.

GARFIELD ORDER ENDS CONGRESSIONAL COMA

After undergoing a five months' period of fermentation, Harry Garfield, late of Williams College, U. S. fuel auditor, blew off the dome of the National Capitol and stood mounting statue of freedom on her head with his imperial crown to all industries east of the Mississippi to rake fires and wheels. The history of our country no such dilatory use of power before exhibited, nor will it be again if Congress persists in its determination henceforth to have some voice in the affairs of the United States. The Garfield order, sanctioned by the President, brought to the entire country a realization of what disaster can be wreaked upon it by theorists drunk with power. Congress, which has been for delay and demoralization growing out of a policy, which has tamely submitted to torrents of misinformed public press, which has time and again gated all too freely of its powers to central authority, beginning to find itself—to appreciate its own importance against an autocracy whose roots have penetrated the Germany and have been spreading over the United States. One of the first evidences of Congressional reassertion of duty as a coordinate branch of Government, in the Senate, at least, will probably be the early passage over the President's resistance, of the bill providing for a Department of Munitions, which will take over the work of the tangled officialdom in Washington, straighten out the kinks and put it on a smoother running under a Secretary who will be the reference point for reality. The Garfield order was calamitous; it was unjustifiable; it alienated many of the President's friends; it has retarded activities; it has discouraged business, so generous in helping the cause; it will have a disastrous effect on crops depending on this year's output of harvesting machinery; it has thrown all the way out of gear; the laborers who have suffered from it have been able to buy coal, and the coal distribution promised has been achieved. But the order has brought Congress to its senses, and that is something.

Soldiers in the military hospital at Bath, England, furnish an example of war's coincidence. Two boys born in the same village, joined the same regiment, were both wounded in their left legs by bullets which passed into the right foot, travelled home to the same home, and were both treated by side in the hospital to identical treatment. The average number of letters censored each day in the London Postal Censorship department is 375,517, weighing about four tons.

WILL BUILD EXPLOSIVE PLANTS FOR GOVERNMENT

D. C. Jackling of San Francisco, managing director of some of the largest copper mines in the country, has been chosen by Secretary of War Dicker to superintend the construction of explosive plants for government at a cost of something like $30,000,000. The plans are to be built because the secretary is convinced private manufacturers will not be able to keep up with the government demand.

ALTOONA HIGH WILL PUT UP STIFF SCRAP

Lovers of basketball are looking forward to the coming game on Saturday evening between the local high school and Altoona High school. It will be remembered that last year Altoona was the only high school of its class to defeat the crack Reading high school team. This was done by the narrow margin of two points. This same Reading bunch defeated the local tilters by two points so it there is anything in the dope or comparative scores there should be some great basketball in the high school gymnasium on Saturday night. This game was scheduled for Friday night but owing to the fact that Altoona was compelled to switch nights with Houtzdale the usual Friday night game for Clearfield will this week be played on Saturday night. Coach Smith is getting the boys rounded up into shape. They have been hard at work since their defeat at the hands of Reynoldsville last week and will be in line for this coming game with Altoona.

Official figures just made public show that the average cost of food, stuffs in England has a little more than doubled since the commencement of the war.

Not a Corn or Callus on Feet

Apply few drops, then lift them off without pain.
A noted Cincinnati authority discovered a new ether compound and called it freezezone and now can be had in little bottles for a few cents from any drug store.
You simply apply a few drops of freezezone upon a tender corn or painful callus and in a few minutes the soreness disappears, then shortly you will find the corn or callus so loose that you can lift it off with the fingers.
No pain, not a bit of soreness, either when applying freezezone or afterwards, and it doesn't even irritate the skin.
Hard corns, soft corns or corns between the toes, also toughened calluses, just shrivel up and lift off so easy. It is wonderful! It works like a charm. Try it! Women should keep freezezone on their dressers and never let a corn ache twice.

AIRPLANE TYPES BECOME MORE VARIED

Advance In Science Of Traveling Through Air Keeps Experts On Alert For Improvements

LIFE OF A MACHINE IS SHORT

Washington, D. C., Jan. 30.—The statement that Uncle Sam is building hundreds of aeroplanes "of the most improved patterns, to aid in the war against the Germans, means little to the average person. To most people an aeroplane is an aeroplane. Very few of those outside of the military service realize that the types of flying machines evolved during the three years and more of the war vary as materially as do the types of ships comprising the United States navy. There is hardly more difference in fact, between a battleship and a destroyer than there is between one of the new battleplanes and a single seater scout. These latter are, in fact, the "destroyers" of the air. Then can easily attain a speed of 150 miles an hour, climb more than one thousand feet a minute up to twenty thousand feet and over, and can turn and dip and perform such "stunts" as looping-the-loop as quickly and easily as dragon-flies. Their business is to spy out the land behind the enemy's lines. Unlike the battleplanes, fighting is not their main business.

At the other end of the scale are the corps buses, as they are termed in the war zones, whose duty it is to keep up constant communication between the firing line and their attached battalions in the rear. Almost any machine can be made to do duty as a corps bus. It is the last stage downward before the training bus period is reached; after which the machine goes to the scrap heap.

The bombing machines are the scoundrels of the air. Their pilots are a law unto themselves, darting hither and thither at their own free will and dropping their "eggs" on aerodromes, ammunition depots, railway stations, or any other chance target that happens to attract their attention.

With the bombing machines usually go two or more double-seater fighting scouts. These serve a two-fold purpose. They protect the bombers against attacks by hostile aeroplanes, and in between whiffs, if no enemy machine is in sight, they will swoop down, and form a height of a few hundred feet start machine-gunning any likely target—a detachment of troops on the march, a transport column, or a stray motor car. The fighting-scout pilots term these little diversions "ground stunts."

Then there are the patrol buses, entirely different from the corps buses already mentioned. The patrol bus is a low flying, slow-moving machine, whose main duty consists in mothering the infantry during an advance. That is to say, they follow their doings, signal back for reinforcements when necessary, inform the gunners when to carry forward their barrage fire and report progress generally to brigade headquarters in the rear.

Then again, there are the machines fitted with cameras, whose business it is to photograph the enemy defenses. These are the eyes of the army. Very little escapes them. They fly often twenty, thirty or more miles beyond the enemy's first line, watching, prying, recording everything that is worth while. The camera-carrying machine is a two-seater, very fast, and, as its work takes it always well inside the danger zone it carries also with it one or more machine guns, together with as many drums of ammunition as can conveniently be stowed on board.

Of an altogether different type are the aeroplanes whose special duty it is to guide and control the fire of the heavy guns. These are exceedingly stable machines, carrying powerful wireless installations, with which they are able to signal immediately every hit or miss, as the case may be, to the gunners manipulating the enormous pieces of ordnance ten, twelve or more miles distant, and when, in most instances, are quite unable to see the target at which they are aiming.

LETTERS FROM OUR SOLDIER BOYS

Jan. 9, 1918

Dear Mother:
Just a line to let you know I am still alive and feeling fine. Am in England but cannot tell you where. We are going to stay here awhile for training. They first sent us to a pest camp for a week and then they split our squadron up into four flits and shipped each one to different parts of England for training, so do not worry for I am a long ways from the front.

We have a nice camp here and good cuts. We have four meals a day, breakfast at 7.30, dinner 12.30, tea 4.30 and supper at 8.00. The coffee we get here isn't very good but the tea is good.

The trains here look like toys beside ours.

I wish you would send me some cigarette and tobacco for the tobacco you get here cannot come up to the tobacco of U. S. A. Bull Durham is the only American tobacco you can get here and it is a shilling a pack. So if you will get me some get Bull Durham tobacco and some Chesterfield cigarettes, for it is hard to do without some smokes. I still have some Bull Durham I brought over along. Be sure to put them in a strong box and send them by parcel post.

Will have a lot of interesting things to tell you of the place I have seen, when I come home. I hope this find you well.

You loving son,

MAGGIE MASON RHYMES NEW SACK STYLES

In a Humorous Vein Tells What The Designers Are Doing For Spring Attire

NO RESTRICTIONS THUS FAR

By Margaret Mason
(Written for the United Press.)
The designing young designers are designing thin and thru And they even have temerity To have designs on you.

They have shut up all the factories, the offices and shops. On theatres and restaurants they've put the stops to save on coal so precious and they've even dimmed the lights so the one time dazzling Great White Way is Stygian these nights.

They've topped our eating sugar, they've stopped our eating meat and wheat stuffs till our diet is a thing far from complete.

But though the busy Government is stopping all they can to stop the rash designers, seems beyond the power of man. So the busy young designers keep designing right along pretty things for that thrill charmer that is neither wine nor song.

The novelties they're turning out quite take your breath away and after that they take your cash if you've some left today. To have your hat upon your head and also in your hand you think perhaps a magic feat and hard to understand. But really it's quite simple when you are in the know for one hat makes a knitting bag and one a smart chapeau. The set I saw was of mixed straw lined in magnolia silk and gayly colored fruits and flowers likewise of silk. A puffed silk crown adorned the hat you were upon your head. To make the hand bag, round the brim deep silk was shirred instead. This hatty set will be the talk, no doubt, of many a town. The head hat's worn all right-side up the hand hat up-side down.

Hop sacking in a gingham check of navy blue and white makes up a striking novelty that's really very bright. It is a set of hat and bag a combination life but this cute bag's an apron too. It leads a double life. The back piece fastens over the front with snaky frill of blue and glows up with two navy strings like all good bags should do. But when you lift the back flap up it fastens round the waist and makes an apron pocketed where knitting may be placed. The hat a simple sailor shape is covered with the check and on both hat and apron bag is crewel fruit, by heck.

Hop sacking skirts are also smart with coats of velveteen. Some with aprons and pocketed flaps, hop-sacking and I've seen.

And apropos of skirts, my dears, I saw a novelty so charming and original it quite appealed to me. It was a parol with tips and handle ivory white and covered with a Chinese skirt, a truly gorgeous sight, and yet withal in best of taste. It's fitted panels shone with rarest hand embroidery in blues and golden tone. Of course a bag made of a skirt accompanied it as well for if you see one thing with out a bag to match—do tell.

My little son a satchel has to take his books to school. It's made of burlap on one side is a design in crewel. Well in the smartest of the shops upon Fifth Avenue there is a bag identical except to modish view. It differs only in its size and what it's made to carry for knitting and not learning it holds more necessary. The yarn design upon it's side look like a plat de four upon a meadow, wheatless day it's fruits you may be sure. A burlap hat to match it up is yarned and dained, the same designs it has upon itself and I've designs, oh shame, upon my small son's school book bag I really do adore it, so if he misses it some day he'll know where to look for it.

Some shiny hats of old cloth, black, are novel things, oh very some wreaths of tiny flowers show and some peach plum and cherry. While some in turban shape, self trimmed, are all of old cloth shiny with swaggy pecky standing loops. These turban hats are tiny.

So up up old cloth sacking now designers greatly prize from ordinary things like these they make so smart surprise.

For common sugar and wheat hats now every sight. We and designers teach us slowly things to despise.

Looks as if the champion White Sox will have their 1917 lineup intact when they take the field this season. One of the few American League teams in which numerous changes will not be for

IF KIDNEYS ACT BAD TAKE SALTS

Says Backache is Sign you Have been
Eating too much meat

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and laggard. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them like you relieve your bowels; removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sour, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scale and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good, reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effervescent lithia-water drink.

We waited right up to the door and rapped but got no answer. Then we tried the door. It was locked. We were charged by the Hon. Joseph to get there and deliver that speech and we were determined to obey orders. Thinking the teacher and school knew who the speaker was to be and had the door locked on us we decided to get into that school if we had to break in.

the air, we were unable to get a look inside until after we had doffed our overcoat and laboriously shinned up a convenient tree to a point of vantage where we could see the entire school room. Nobody there.

When we sadly turned away, a woman living in the house across the road from the school came to the door and we asked her if that was Pleasant Hill school house. She said it was and volunteered the further information that the stove broke down and there hadn't been any school there for more than a week. We think the Hon. Joseph and the speakers bureau knew this when they made their assignments, too.

But that's the way it goes in "this here cruel, cruel world." No sooner do you get your candle from under the bushie until some darn thing comes along with snufflers and snuffs out your light. Gone are our dreams of a platform career; we had visions at times of sharing the lime light with Grape Juice Bill Bryan or Teetheadore Mouthevilt, but never again; no never again.

We've got to win this war without Pleasant Hill, that's all there is to it, and furthermore we have a sneaking suspicion that that stove didn't break down until after the list of speakers was published, and furthermore we are not sure the darn thing was broken down at that. But there was nobody there to greet us anyhow. Sadly we wended our way back down to the main road. We were all dressed up and nowhere to go. Glancing about we noticed the word "Retreat" on a fence paralleling the road, and that gave us the proper idea. Retreat we did, and soon covered the mile of snowy road back to Phillipsburg.

GRANTED RIGHTS FOR 99 YEARS

Horn Family Now Wealthy By Lease of Acid Iron Mineral Rights To Corporation

Most everyone has read of the great medicinal iron deposit unearthed on the horn farm down near Hickory, Mississippi and today the highly concentrated product is put up under the A-I-M trade mark of the Ferrodine Chemical Corp., which has stood for quality and strength in medicines for over thirty years.

Dr. R. C. Johnson, of Stringer, Mississippi, in a letter some time ago said: "I have used Acid Iron Mineral in my practice for a number of years and find that it has no equal as a nerve, blood purifier and liver medicine. In the treatment of indigestion and dyspepsia nothing can compete with it."

Just a teaspoonful or less of Acid Iron Mineral mixed with a glass of water after meals has relieved many a man and woman of severe stomach troubles and pains, indigestion and the various other symptoms of stomach disorders and after treatment not only has their appetite been revived

but uric acid seemed to disappear by magic, leaving people troubled with rheumatism, again and free of pain.
"Dr. A. L. Johnson of this prescribed Acid Iron Mineral writes E. C. Keen, D. D. S., of Va., "and for the past two years had excruciating pains from rheumatism in my left arm. I raised my arm, it was so bad, taking about three quarters of the he prescribed for me I was cured and haven't been bothered since. In my opinion it is a wonderful purifier and remedy for rheumatism."
Note—Neither Doctor Johnson nor I are of any kin. The files of people of same name who are the local drug stores have a large bottle will be sent upon receipt of $1 by the Ferrodine Chemical Corporation, Roanoke. For sale by Stewart Drug in good stores generally.
